People might well have differed about some of the actions of President Davis in the troublous times of war, but when he was cast into a felon's cell at the end of hostilities, the hearts of the Southern people went out to him as never before, and his faults were forgotten in the generous sympathy of our whole Southern country. Since then his conduct, his language, and his actions have always been in accord with the sentiments of all our people. It is with pleasure we publish his admirable response to the invitation extended to him by the citizens of Salisbury to attend the proposed re-union of soldiers there. He
